LETTER CARRIERS TO PERFORM DOUBLE DUTY ON SATURDAY DURING “STAMP OUT HUNGER FOOD DRIVE”

GREENVILLE - On Saturday May 11, Letter Carriers in Greenville, and across the country, will perform double duty on their routes – deliver the mail and collect food items during the 21st Annual STAMP OUT HUNGER FOOD DRIVE. Food donations in Greenville will benefit the Food Bank of Central & Eastern North Carolina at Greenville, located at 497 West Ninth Street.

On Stamp Out Hunger Day, the public is asked to simply place bags filled with nonperishable food items next to their mailbox. For the second year, bags are donated by AARP. A Letter Carrier will collect the donation and take it back to their postal branch where Food Bank volunteers will be on site throughout the day to unload the postal trucks.

The Food Bank of Central & Eastern North Carolina has more than 560,000 individuals in their 34-county service area who struggle to put and keep meals on the table. In the ten counties served by the Food Bank of Central & Eastern North Carolina at Greenville, more than 103,000 individuals are at risk of hunger.

The Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive comes at a critical time when holiday food drive donations are long gone. Go to www.foodbankcenc.org for more information.
